A London dispatch says:

Notwithstanding the hopeful news of Russian concessions announced from Vienna and intimations from St. Petersburg, it cannot be said there is any positive change in the questions in dispute. It is said a conciliatory disposition has prevailed in the councils of St. Petersburg government, but it is asked, what does Russia consider at this moment to be a conciliatory disposition or conciliatory proposals? The fresh attempt to reach an understanding is described as getting over difficulties of form by making far-reaching concessions on the merits of the question. England demands the placing of the treaty of San Stefano before the congress for unreserved discussion. Russia, it is said, refuses to give way on that point. In Berlin as in London the subject is treated with scepticism as long as it is known Russia refuses to yield on the chief point and England maintains her demand.

A Great Historical Work.

The National Publishing Company, St. Louis, has sent us advance sheets of "The Pictorial History of the World, embracing full and authentic accounts of every nation of ancient and modern times, and the history of the rise and fall of the Greek and Roman Empires, the growth of the nations of Modern Europe, the Middle Ages, the Crusades, the Feudal System, the Reformation, the discovery and settlement of the New World, etc., etc., by James D. McCabe, a well known historical writer. This is one of the most valuable works ever issued by an American publisher, and it is in all respects the most complete history of the world ever published. The author does not content himself with a mere dry statement of facts, but sketches the life and manners of the various nations of which he treats, in life-like colors, and points out the causes which led to the prosperity and decay of the great powers of the world. He shows us the famous warriors, statesmen, poets, sages, and orators of ancient and modern times, and makes them familiar to the reader. The book is a complete treasury of history, and there is not a question that can be asked concerning any historical subject but an answer to it can be found in this great work. It contains 1200 large double-column pages, and is embellished with over 650 fine engravings illustrating the events recorded in the narrative, embracing battles of art, and the great men of the world. The great number and high character of these engravings make this the most valuable art publication of the century. We cannot too highly praise the numerous and beautiful pictures with which it abounds. A marked feature of the work is a complete history of the late war between Russia and Turkey, which is the only complete account of that war in print. This is an appropriate time to read the history of the world, and we predict for this book an immense sale.

It is sold by subscription only, and the publishers want agents, as will be seen by their advertisement in another column.
